Young Voices for Peace - The Role of Young People in Civil Conflict Resolution 7 October 2025, Nicolaihaus, Berlin (on-site only)

How can young people shape peace in a world of shrinking civic spaces and digital challenges?

Join us for an inspiring afternoon of dialogue and exchange with young peacebuilders, civil society actors, and policymakers from around the world, as we commemorate the 10th year of the UN Youth, Peace, and Security Agenda (YPS).

As civic spaces around the globe face increasing restrictions driven by authoritarianism, digital repression, and disinformation, young people are often the most affected. Despite these challenges, they continue to lead with creativity, courage, and determination, finding innovative ways to engage, organise, and advocate for peaceful and democratic societies.

This event will explore how youth can shape peace and protect civic space in the face of today's digital and political challenges. Together, we will discuss:

- The role of youth in defending open, inclusive spaces for dialogue and activism
- Strategies for building digital resilience and countering disinformation
- The importance of international cooperation in supporting youth-led peacebuilding

These topics will be explored in interactive panel discussions and exchanges.

Your voice matters. Be part of a global conversation on how young people can transform civic challenges into opportunities for peace and progress.

A formal invitation with full programme details will follow.

We look forward to welcoming you to Berlin.
